Dear Amy—John and I have already sent two easy chairs for Christmas to Grandma and Grandpa, and you ought to read the letter they wrote back. They said they knew their children were sensible as well as thoughtful, because they sent such sensible presents. They never got anything in their lives that pleased them so well.

As ever, Lou.

P. S.—You and Bob, by all means, send easy chairs to your parents. Be sure to buy them from

A Vagrant Christmas Gift

By ALBERT EDWARD CONVERSE

(Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.)

MR. and Mrs. Jackson Smith understood each other perfectly on the Christmas eve. This satisfactory state of affairs did not come about the first year of their wedded life, nor even the second. The third Christmas was almost at hand before Mr. Smith discovered accidentally, but to his intense joy, that Mrs. Smith relished his selection of furs, gloves, cravats, rugs, and so on, no more than did he her choice of smoking-jackets, cravats, mufflers, etc.

That their friends could not be taken in on the combination was, however, a thorn in the flesh of each of them.

"The worst has happened," said Mrs. Smith, interrupting Mr. Smith's perusal of the paper Christmas morning.

"A messenger just brought a present from the Smiths, and I forgot to put them on my list. It's a book and we've got to send them something."

"Well, what are we going to do about the Smiths?" growled Mr. Smith.

"Jack," said she in a moment, "I've had an inspiration. Why couldn't we send the Smiths the book that Cousin Lucy sent us? Neither of them will ever know it."

"By George! We'll do it," said Mr. Smith, after considering the proposition. "Where is Cousin Lucy's book?"

"It's on the desk," said Mrs. Smith. "Just put our cards in the book and wrap it up neatly. I'll call a messenger boy."

Half an hour later Mr. Smith handed a package, addressed to Mr. Smith, to a messenger boy and saw him depart with it. He was luxuriously stretched out on a davenport when Mrs. Smith came into the room a few minutes later.

"Jack," said Mrs. Smith, holding a book in her hand, "I thought you were going to wrap this book up."

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Mr. Smith, jumping to his feet. "I did wrap up some book. The messenger has already been here and I gave it to him."

"How long has the boy been gone?" demanded Mrs. Smith.

"About ten minutes."

"Get your things on. Be quick, and maybe you can reach the Smiths before the boy and get that dreadful book away from him! How could you have been so careless?"

Mrs. Smith was almost frantic. Down to the nearest street car tore Mr. Smith, fairly consumed with rage.

He had arrived at the downtown district when, with a thrill of joy, he spied the messenger boy waiting for the car to stop. Mr. Smith jumped off and started on a run for the boy.

At the same moment the messenger boy saw him, and, without knowing why he was being pursued, he obeyed his first impulse and ran too.

In a moment a dozen had joined in the chase. Down the street came the poor messenger boy, frantically straining every muscle to get away from the mob pursuing him. Suddenly two men from a cross street ran in front of the boy. One threw his arms around the fugitive, holding him fast; the other man seized the package the boy was carrying.

"Why, Smith!" this package is addressed to you!" he exclaimed.

"Why, so it!" said the man who had caught the boy.

In a moment they were surrounded by a crowd. A policeman rushed up and took charge of the boy.

"Hold on there, officer, the boy's all right!" cried Mr. Smith, who had arrived upon the scene by this time.

"What do you know about this?" said the policeman respectfully, as he recognized Mr. Smith.

But Mr. Smith was standing as one dazed. He had caught sight of Mr. Smith with the book under his arm.

"Hello, Smith," said Mr. Smith. "I just saw how caught this boy, and found him carrying a package addressed to me, so took charge of it. Do you know anything about it?"

"Why—why—er—yes," stammered Mr. Smith, trying to collect his wits.

"You see, I sent the package."

"You see, I sent the package," said the policeman, a little impatiently.

The perspiration stood on poor Mr. Smith's forehead.

"I was afraid I hadn't given the boy the right address, and was trying to stop him to find out," he blurted in desperation.

The policeman looked at Mr. Smith curiously. He was convinced that he was lying, though with what object he could not imagine.

"The package has come to the right fellow anyway," said Smith, laughing. "I'm going right home, so I'll take it along with me."

"Oh, I couldn't think of allowing you to do that, old man!" cried Mr. Smith. "Just give it back to the boy!"

Sick Headache.

Sick headache is nearly always caused by disorders of the stomach. Correct them and the periodic attacks of headache will disappear. Mrs. John Bishop, of Roseville, Ohio, writes: "About a year ago I was troubled with indigestion and had sick headache that lasted for two or three days at a time. I doctored and tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until during one of those spells a friend advised me to take Chamberlain's Tablets. This medicine relieved me in a short time." For sale by all dealers.—Adv. dec.

The embargo has been raised on cattle shipping at Chicago, and the yards there can receive the same from now on.

desk and searching first calmly and then with apparent annoyance.

"By George! It isn't here," he announced in a surprised tone.

Suddenly he sat down and began laughing uproariously.

"Do you know what I've done?" he said as soon as he had his wits about him. "I gave Perkins your package. I forgot that I took his present home last night, and my wife sent it over this morning with a present for Mrs. Perkins."

"Oh, that's all right," said Smith, laughing. "It doesn't make a particle of difference."

They parted, laughing good-naturedly over the blunder.

Leonard Spence has returned home, after spending several days with his sister, Mrs. J. I. Hughes, at Idamay.

Miss Nina King was the guest of Miss Alma Mitchell, in Cincinnati, a part of last week.

Why Do 700,000 Women Own Hoosier Cabinets?

When you know that 700,000 women use Hoosier Kitchen Cabinets three times every day, doesn't it suggest to you that you need this druggery-saver in YOUR kitchen?

Figure it out to yourself this way: Would they have bought these cabinets without convincing themselves that they SAVE MILES OF STEPS and hours of time? Would so many have bought them at all if users hadn't told others and thus influenced their friends to buy them?

Since this means that more Hoosier Cabinets have been sold than all other 128 makes of cabinets combined, isn't it proof enough that the Hoosier is the best cabinet on the market?

When you see how the Hoosier groups four cupboards around a large metal table and places 400 articles at your fingers' ends so you can sit down and work—AND REST while working—you'll want one of these "White Beauties."

Come pick one out today.

The Way to Smart Dress

Lies not through an extravagant expenditure of money, or a visit to scores of stores, or the inspection of hundreds of garments. Quite to the contrary, the smartness and style sought for by most women are achieved by concentrating on one store whose reputation is above reproach, and whose modes, materials and manner type the most advanced ideas. And, how will you recognize this store? Simply look for the STYLE-CRAFT emblem.

STYLE-CRAFT Suits, Coats and Cape-Coats are styled with that wonderful ingenuity and art possessed by only a few designers. Every garment is man-tailored by experts from a timely fabric—luxuriant, pronounced or restrained, but in perfect harmony with the mode and the moment. Probably there are no tailors outside of the Style-Craft Shops who can achieve such nicety of curve and contour—such velvety smoothness—such uniform and perfect workmanship, who can so beautifully "bring out" that ultimate degree of style-value coveted by the fashionable woman.

The stylists of Paris, Vienna or New York cannot produce modes as charming as STYLE-CRAFT. It has taken months of constant effort—it has taken hundreds of skilled fingers—to make it possible for you to wear STYLE-CRAFT garments, but the opportunity is now yours. There are scores of alluring STYLE-CRAFT modes in Suits, Coats and Cape-Coats the "creme de la creme"—for you to glance at in our store. Come in at your first convenience
